Registration

The Regional Trials is the first step in the Arctic Winter Games selection process. We have five regions broken down to ensure that all NWT residents get a fair opportunity to participate. You can register and compete in up to 2 sports at the Regional Trials, as long as the selection camps are on different dates. In order to register, you must complete the registration form and pay the registration fee by the deadline- October 30, 2009.

Every region has a Regional Coordinator to ensure that things run smoothly. They are responsible for collecting the registration forms, fees, arranging your transportation and working with the communities hosting events to ensure that the selection camps are handled properly. Once the registration deadline has passed, the Regional Coordinator will determine if a Regional Trials selection camp is needed for each sport. If so, he/she will then coordinate the travel and accommodations with each community. Athletes usually stay in the schools or are billeted in the host community.
